DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bloom (5,764,348).

With respect to claim 1, Bloom discloses an optical interface device. The device comprises: a stimulus input port 40 (fig 3), a test signal output port 42 (fig 3), a plurality of device test ports and routers 38a-38j (fig 3), laser 14 (fig 3), a first and a second switches (Switch A, Switch B, fig 3), a device under test (DUT hereinafter) 10 (fig 3).

Bloom does not explicitly disclose generating a reference and a stimulus signal. However, Bloom discloses connecting the device to a plurality of laser sources (column 6, lines 40-50) for providing different signals to perform different tasks. It would have been obvious that Bloom's input source could generate a reference signal 102 (fig 7B) and a stimulus signal 14 (fig 7B).

With respect to claims 2-3, Bloom discloses a plurality of optical couplers (column 4, lines 40-45) which perform the same function as claimed.

With respect to claim 4, Bloom does not explicitly disclose an optical circulator. However, the claimed optical circulator would have been known. It would have been obvious to replace Bloom's routers with the known circulators to enhance the testing.

With respect to claims 5-9, Bloom does not disclose an optical delay circuit or an optical combiner or a polarization synthesizer or polarization diversity. However, it would have been obvious a design choice to modify Bloom's optical interface device with the claimed limitations to test different characteristics or different types of DUT. The modification involves only routine skill in the art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on 12/01/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

With respect to Applicant's argument about the reference signal and the stimulus signal, refer to discussion in claim 1 above.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
